I am a 58 year old Licensed Practical Nurse and personal care nurse in North Carolina. I work full time in a 35 room retirement/assisted living community. The women in this facility range from 65 to 85 years of age. I also pick up independent contracts for evenings and weekends as a home health care provider. This is my experience and observation using the EcoProven Anti-Viral Mouthwash.

I had seen Richard Craig on December 1, 2020 to get hand sanitizer and several bottles of EcoProven Mouthwash for my own use. We talked about the worsening COVID crisis in our area and across the country. Richard told me that COVID would eventually get into the retirement community and he expressed surprise that it had not, as of yet. He made me promise that I would call him if any of the residents tested COVID-19 positive.

I had to call him the very next day. I went in to work and within hours, we had confirmation of 4 people that had tested COVID positive. By mid afternoon, Richard had dropped off 35 bottles of EcoProven Mouthwash at the facility for me. I passed out the mouthwash to anyone that wanted it, including the 4 residents that had tested COVID positive. Fortunately, that is pretty much the end of the story. No one became symptomatic and the COVID just went away. The residents are continuing to use the EcoProven Anti-Viral Mouthwash and to date, no one else has tested COVID positive.

Based on all of the horror stories that I have been hearing and reading about, I know that this could have developed into a very bad situation, given the age of these ladies. I can only assume that the EcoProven Mouthwash prevented the 4 COVID positive women from getting symptomatic and possibly, gravely ill. I also assume that the mouthwash helped prevent the spread of the virus to others. Knowing what I know about COVID, my gut intuition tells me that this probably would have developed into a much more serious situation had it not been for the EcoProven Mouthwash.

As of now, I have given away approximately 40 bottles of the mouthwash to family, friends and work related patients and residents. No one has become infected by the virus and the 4 individuals that had tested positive were negative again within days. Two of my other home clients are a retired dentist and his wife. They are now faithful EcoProven Mouthwash users.

As I said earlier, my intuition tells me that with out the EcoProven Mouthwash, this “outbreak” at the retirement community probably would have had a much different outcome and very likely may have resulted in multiple deaths.
